

Latest Book: The CASS Proposed Draft of the Specific Provisions of the Chinese Civil Code

Chen Su, et. al. (eds.), The CASS Proposed Draft of the Specific Provisions of the Chinese Civil Code, Beijing: Law Press China, July 2019.

The Civil Code is an important component of modern law. In order to implement the relevant decisions of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, the CASS Law Institute has established the Working Group on the Compilation of the Civil Code which has, under the guidance of the Legislative Affairs Committee of the Stand Committee of the National People's Congress, comprehensively participated in the compilation of the General Provisions of the Civil Code and carried out the following preparatory works for the compilation of the various parts of the specific provisions of the Civil Code: the preparation of the Issues List of Specific Provisions of the Civil Code and the compilation CASS Proposed Draft of the Specific Provisions of the Chinese Civil Code. This book is a detailed recording of the process of the participation by CASS Law Institute in the compilation of the various parts of the specific provisions of the Civil Code. It consists of three parts: the Proposed Draft of Specific Provisions of the Civil Code submitted by CASS Law Institute to the Legislative Affairs Committee of the Stand Committee of the National People's Congress; Opinions on Each Part of the Draft of Specific Provisions of the Civil Code; and Opinions and Suggestions on Various Parts of the (Draft) Specific Provisions of the Civil Code. In December 2019, the book was selected by CASS as one of the major research achievements of CASS Innovation Projects in 2019.
